Multi award winning mediator challenging how we think about conflict and it's role in shaping innovation and change.

In this competitive, global world, complex problems require complex levels of problems solving. You need to focus on more than legal or financial advice when you find yourself in a dispute. Industry change makers know that these challenges present opportunities to think differently about the problems that have emerged.

With 25 years practice experience, Sarah understands the high impact costs when these complex problems aren't resolved. As an entrepreneur she also understands that disputes need quick and effective resolution so that you can get on with the things that matter to you.

What sets Sarah apart from others in the industry is her capacity to understand the strategic positioning of your conflict; enabling her to work with you to achieve real solutions. Her expertise in the multi-party, cross-border disputes has resulted in international recognition. Her work with Executive teams and Boards has resulted in cultural and systemic change. She continues to provide conflict advice to state and federal government and is a recognised thought leader and global speaker. Within the mediation profession her approach is unique in that she is able to align the conflict context, content and strategic implications, which results in high quality outcomes.

With a focus on conflict culture and leadership, Sarah works with corporations and leaders to help them navigate their way through conflict to solutions. Sarah has spent more than 15 years delivering mediation training across Australia and internationally, specialising in cross-cultural dispute resolution.
