

NLIS for trucking yards and dip yards in the NT

For the purposes of livestock tracing, export depots and the Darwin wharves are treated like any other property. There is a Property Identification Code (PIC) applicable to each export depot and a single PIC which covers all of the Darwin All trucking yards and dip yards are identified by a Property Identification Code (PIC). The mandatory use of RFIDs for Northern Territory cattle moving from property to property commenced on 1 July 2007.

All cattle which are unloaded at a trucking yard or dip yard for any period of time and for any purpose must have their RFID numbers and transaction details recorded to the NLIS database. It will be the responsibility of the yard owner to ensure that the movement is recorded to the NLIS database.

If any cattle are found that are not identified with a RFID the yard owner will be required to attach a post breeder device (purchased for use at that trucking yard or dip yard) prior to the cattle leaving the yard.
